

BLAST FROM THE PAST: Vehicle safety inspections

When you think of vehicle inspection blitzes, you're probably thinking about large commercial vehicles. They're still subject to occasional safety blitzes. But there was a time when passenger vehicles also came under scrutiny!

The latest post on the CARS Facebook page offers a glimpse of how seriously the Ontario Ministry of Transportation used to take vehicle safety. Peter Abela of London, Ont., sent in this photo of a spot inspection in St. Thomas, Ontario.

Remember those days?

Have any thoughts on the need to inspect modern vehicles for road-worthiness?

Feel free to weigh in at www.facebook.com/myCARSmagazine

✉ Subscribe